Jail Expansion

County Judge Bob Clinard stated that two or three months ago discussion was started on how to resolve the misdemeanor prisoner issue in the county jail. He stated that the jail's F-pod was designed and built to hold misdemeanor inmates, but it is not being used for that purpose. He stated that currently in that area is laundry facilities, an exercise and workout area, and other administrative offices. He stated that those will be moved into a new building designed for administrative uses. He stated that they have estimated that the county would have additional space for 30 misdemeanor inmates, after the initial 60-day project is completed. He stated that the work will cost about $30,000 and that money is already in the budget. He added that this initial conversion is part of a larger project. Judge Clinard stated that completing F-pod for misdemeanor inmates will give the county about 90 spaces when the work is done and another short-term expansion will give the jail another 12 cells for female inmates. He stated that he would like to put out a Request for Qualifications (RFQ) for an architect to design the major jail expansion. He said that the initial expansion and the major construction project could cost between $1.8 million and $1.9 million. He added that he would also ask the architect to provide a design for another jail pod for felon inmates that would add space for another 150-200 inmates.

JP Moore asked how much additional staff the expansion will require. Captain Gyll responded that short term, he could get by without adding additional staff, but with the other expansion they would need an additional 10 positions.

After further discussion was held on the expansion to be done at the county jail, JP Allen asked for a show of hands to allow Judge Clinard to seek requests for qualifications for an architect to design the major jail expansion.

Approval to allow Judge Clinard to seek RFQ's, passed by a show of hands vote.

Benton County Rogers Office Parking Lot Land Purchase and Construction

County Judge Bob Clinard stated that the three county offices – assessor, county clerk and collector – that share the Benton County Rogers Offices (BCRO) building have all reported an increase in customer traffic over the former office site at Third and Poplar streets in Rogers. He stated that the revenue office figures show about 1,800 more people use the office each month compared to the old location and that the Assessor and Collector are up around 2,000 each month. He stated that the increase in business has brought some problems to light.

Judge Clinard reported that a part of the improvements is that the small office space used by the Public Defender's Office will be moved to the Center of Non-profits in Rogers and that he is in the middle of negotiations to buy the vacant land just east of the office at 15th and Walnut streets. Judge Clinard stated that the parking lot will be connected and a new paved parking lot built on the additional land.
